Mission Statement

Our mission is to enhance the image of the Black Press and increase the public's awareness of the impact and importance of the Black Press.

The Historical Black Press Foundation seeks to provide access to professional training, seminars and publications that will help members of the Black Press, authors and the minority media industry to improve their skills and the quality, content, and image of their media outlets.

The Historical Black Press Foundation is divided into three parts: Research and Development, Professional Development and Training, and Publications and Editorial Services.

Please Note: All information is required. Make checks payable to: Historical Black Press Foundation and mail to: 1000 Connecticut Ave NW #600, Wash, DC 20036
